

ODE TO KERMIT (IN THE VOICE OF MISS PIGGY)

Kermit, oh, Kermie,
Your name sends me floating through pools of algae.
Just the sight of you sends my heart into thralls
Like the pitter and patter of two ping-pong balls.
Kermit, with your mouth of red felt
And hemispherical eyes that cause me to melt,
Every time I think of wonderful vous
I wish that I could grow old with you.
My precious Kermit, my affection is no mistake,
Yet you still cause moi's heart to break.

-
1. Which of these is NOT something Piggy described about Kermit?
 - a. pools of algae
 - b. hemispherical eyes
 - c. ping pong balls
 - d. both a. and c.
 2. From reading this poem, we can conclude:
 - a. Kermit loves Piggy, but she doesn't love him back
 - b. Piggy and Kermit have a harmonious relationship
 - c. Piggy loves Kermit, but he doesn't love Piggy
 - d. Piggy and Kermit are married
 3. Which of the following is part of a simile?
 - a. hemispherical eyes that cause me to melt
 - b. your mouth of red felt
 - c. floating through pools of algae
 - d. pitter and patter of two ping-pong balls
 4. What does "Kermit, with your mouth of red felt" tell us?
 - a. Piggy thinks Kermit's mouth is always dry
 - b. that Kermit is a puppet
 - c. that Kermit eats felt and other fabrics
 - d. that Kermit's mouth is bleeding